NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 1.—(P)—As Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley mustered more men and guns than Senator Huey P. Long in his police-militia "war," Adjutant General Raymond H. Fleming announced tonight that half of the senator's national guardsmen were being demobilized.

Governor O. K. Allen, at Baton Rouge, almost simultaneously broadened his proclamation of a partial martial law and ordered the state soldiers to scour throughout the city and uncover, "without the use of any force," asserted evidence of vice, gambling and graft.

Almost 1,500 city police under Mayor Walmsley, armed with rifles and riot guns, were ready to engage the guardsmen if an attempt was made to usurp the New Orleans government.

Adjutant-General Fleming, from his "army" headquarters at Jackson barracks, where 500 militiamen were under arms said he had dismissed "half of the 300 men called out" because "they were not needed."

Ready for Instant Recall.

"We are just going to keep as many men on duty as are necessary," he said. "We can get the others out at a moment's notice, anyhow. We might even let some more men go tomorrow."

A report that additional guardsmen were being brought in from other state points to reinforce the local garrison was denied by the adjutant general.

Senator Long's troops, however, continued to hold by force of arms the city registration office, which is preparing the list of qualified electors to vote in the congressional primary in September in which both Walmsley and Long are supporting rival candidates.

Mayor Walmsley charged that Senator Long's tirade against "vice and corruption" was merely a "smoke screen" under which he hoped to gain control of the city and influence the election.

Adjutant-General Fleming said he had not yet received Governor Allen's order which would turn the guardsmen into a huge detective force to investigate the "red light district" and "miscellaneous gambling."

The new proclamation directed the adjutant-general, "without the use of any force, unless otherwise ordered by me hereafter," to "make a survey and investigation to determine when and where red light districts are operating," with the sanction of city authorities; who, if anyone, is collecting from the inhabitants, and "for what officials, if any, the said collections are being levied."

A similar order was issued for the investigation of "lotteries, roulette

Wife Takes Langer's Place As Gubernatorial Candidate

BISMARCK, N. D., Aug. 1.—(P)—A former New York society girl was today designated republican nominee for governor of North Dakota by a group of hard-bitten farmers.

Mrs. William A. Langer, wife of the man who was deposed as chief executive of the state two weeks ago, was named by the party's state central committee to make the gubernatorial race in November only a few minutes after her husband had resigned the nomination.

She was designated a "vindication" candidate to lead the Langer faction by a vote of 36 to 9.

Mrs. Langer, a newcomer in politics, will head the ticket which her husband led to a smashing primary victory only two days before he was convicted and sentenced to 18 months imprisonment on a charge of conspiracy to solicit political contributions from federal relief workers.

Langer resigned the nomination when it became apparent his right to make the race would be challenged on the ground that his sentencing for a federal felony had annulled his citizenship rights. Langer was removed from the governorship two weeks ago on the same issue by a decision of the state supreme court. Ole H. Olson, a bitter political foe, was designated acting governor by the tribunal's decision. Arrangements had been completed in caucus for Langer's resignation and Mrs. Langer's endorsement before the committee met.

Her name was the only one presented, and several prominent Langer faction leaders, mentioned as possible contenders for the nomination, joined in praise of the former "first lady" when the resolution of endorsement was offered from the floor.

Paralleling in some respects the "Mae Ferguson" case in Texas, where impeachment of Jim Ferguson as governor was followed by election of his wife as chief executive, Mrs. Langer was hurried into the state political machinations first when her husband went on trial in federal court last Mar.

A home-loving mother, mother of four North Dakota-born daughters, the new nominee is the daughter of the late J. Cleveland Cady, prominent architect, who designed New York's famous Metropolitan opera house.

She took to the political stump to defend her husband and to appeal for his nomination when the trial halted his activities.

The electorate replied with a sweep of votes that made Langer again the republican nominee, and sent his entire ticket to victory.

Her opponent in November will be Thomas H. Moodie, Williston newspaperman, who won the democratic nomination. Moodie, speaking before the meeting on the democratic state central committee today, called for a campaign "based on reason rather than prejudice and hatred."

He referred to the June primary campaign in which the Langer and anti-Langer factions of the nonpartisan league conducted a bitter campaign for republican nominations.

Although there have been pre-meeting discussions about the feasibility of fusion between democrats and anti-Langer republicans, the democratic committee adjourned without any formal action along this line.

PAVING BIDS ASKED
ON $750,000 JOBS
BY HIGHWAY BOARD

Atlanta-Marietta Paving,
Rabun County Link
and Atlanta-Newnan Repaving Projects Included

The state highway board Wednesday issued a call for bids on $750,000 worth of paving, grading and bridge work which will be let for contract on August 16.

The projects include a number of important road jobs, one of which is the resurfacing of the Atlanta-Marietta highway which recently was widened. The cost of this project is expected to be around $400,000. Another project to be included is the grading of the eight-mile Georgia street in the Tri-states highway which runs through the northeastern part of Rabun county and connects one of the most important North Carolina-South Carolina highways. This job is expected to cost around $85,000 and the cost will be divided between the state and the United States forestry department.

The projects also include the first Fulton county project of the state's $10,000,000 emergency road fund which is the widening and repaving of the College Park-Red Oak section of the Atlanta-Newnan road. This job will cost approximately $85,000.

The other projects to be contracted for follow:

Widening of bridges and culverts on the Thomasville-Camilla highway in Thomas and Mitchell counties.

Paving of 7 1/2 miles of highway inside the city limits of Rome on the Rome-Cedarstown highway.

Construction of a bridge over Little Filled creek on the Cairo-Pelham road in Grady county.

Paving of 5 1/2 miles inside the city limits of Lumpkin on the Lumpkin-Cusseta road in Stewart county.

Paving of six miles on the Jackson-Atlanta road in Butts county, beginning at Jackson and ending at the Henry county line.

Paving of 2 1/2 miles on the Covington-Porterdale road in Newton county, beginning at Porterdale and ending at Newton.

Construction of an overhead bridge one mile south of Gainesville on the Gainesville-Buford road in Hall county.

Paving of 6 1/2 miles on the Kingsland-St. Mary's road in Camden county, beginning at Kingsland and ending at Burrill creek.

Grading of 2 1/2 miles on the Conyers-Milledale road in Rockdale county, beginning at Conyers and ending at Milledale.

TOBACCO PRICES
SHOW WIDE GAIN
OVER LAST YEAR

Georgia Markets on Opening Day Average 10
Cents Pound Over Summer Paid in 1933.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Aug. 1.—(P)—Georgia Tobacco growers placed their flue-cured leaf on sale at warehouses in 15 south Georgia cities today, and unofficial estimates showed a marked improvement in prices over last year.

The auctions in Georgia, the first to be held in the tobacco belt for the 1934 crop, were marked by a decided interest in the allotment plan by which growers who raise more than their allotments must pay 25 per cent of the tobacco's value in taxes. Georgia was allowed 41,000,000 pounds under AAA program.

Because of the fact that President Roosevelt did not sign the allotment measure until June 28, however, those growers who harvested their crop before this date are exempt from the provisions of the act.

More than 500,000 pounds were ordered for sale when the market at Tifton opened with first-run sales running from 12 to 40 cents per pound. An official estimate that the price was running 10 cents per pound better than last year was made by the Tifton Gazette.

Wide Interest Shown.

On the Valdosta market, prices ranged from a few cents a pound to more than 30 cents for approximately 400,000 pounds on the floors. All growers, speculators and businessmen showed a decided interest in the price tags laid on the piles of weed. Many carried notebooks and attempted to average the prices being paid long before sales were closed.

On the Statesboro market prices ranged from 6 to 40 cents per pound for the more than 125,000 pounds on the floor when the auctions began.

At Baxley the peak price during the morning hours was 42 cents per pound and the low 6 cents. Baxley growers were expected to sell approximately 65,000 pounds during the day.

The Moultrie Observer reported that prices on that market were running more than 100 per cent higher than on the opening day last year and set an unofficial average of about 22 cents a pound on the half million pounds offered for sale there.

Goodall estimated price of 25 to 28 cents, better leaves brought 30 to 40, with a high of 50 cents per pound. Off grades found buyers at 20 cents per pound. On hand when the auction started.

The first 100 piles of tobacco at the Douglas market sold for an average of 24 cents per pound. From 500,000 to 750,000 pounds were estimated to be on the floor when the sale opened.

Approximately 50,000 pounds were on the floors at Waycross with an unofficial average price being paid of about 20 cents per pound.

Tobacco sales at A. A. saw approximately 100,000 pounds offered with an unofficial price average estimate of 20 cents being paid on first transactions.

At several of these markets one or more warehouses still were unopened, with much tobacco on hand for auction.

Four Balloons Sighted Here; Three Come Down in Georgia

Three balloons in the national climatic race to select American entries for the International races at Warsaw, Poland, in September, were down Wednesday, with the two remaining entries apparently still in the air after their take-off from Birmingham Tuesday night.

The silver-sided Goodyear VIII, piloted by Lieutenant Karl L. Lange and Verner L. Smith, dropped into a cornfield at Bolton at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, approximately 125 miles from Birmingham, where the start was made at 10:35 o'clock Tuesday night. They were forced down by shortage of disposable ballast and narrowly missed landing in the Chattahoochee.

BERLIN, Aug. 1.—(Thursday)—The dying reichspresident, Paul von Hindenburg, still was showing a powerful will to live early today as Chancellor Hitler, his probable successor, deliberated over Germany's future with members of his cabinet.

The reichsmembers were called together at 10 o'clock last night, possibly to discuss the reported plans of the chancellor to assume the presidency if the office became vacant.

Hours afterward no word had come from the field marshal's estate at Neudeck, where physicians watched and waited. Once during the early evening the venerable, 86-year-old idol of Germany's millions was reported in the death agony, but rallied. Attending physicians said he might live another day or more.

Hitler in Farewell Visit.

The chancellor paid a farewell visit to the dying hero of Germany at his East Prussian estate and hastened back to Berlin for the cabinet meeting, reporting that von Hindenburg's condition was serious but that his mind still functioned perfectly.

He said when he told the president that the entire nation hoped and prayed his condition might take a turn for the better that von Hindenburg seized his hand warmly and shook it in grateful acknowledgment. Soon afterwards, said the chancellor, the president fell asleep.

The chancellor and official news agencies declined to give details of the emperor's condition. It was said to have lasted into the early morning hours.

At 9:50 p. m., about an hour and a half after the startling report that the reichs president was in the death throes, his physician, Dr. Ferdinand Sauerbruch, telephoned from Neudeck that he was amazed at the president's powers of resistance and said he might linger for some time.

The news followed the revelation by a close friend of Chancellor Adolf Hitler that the latter planned in the event of von Hindenburg's death, to become both president and chancellor.

U. S. JURY INDICTS DETROIT LEADERS

28 Prominent Figures
Named in Connection With Bank Failure.

DETROIT, Aug. 1.—(P)—Twenty-eight men—the list reading as if it might have been copied from a who's who in Detroit business and finance—were named today in federal indictments charging misapplication of funds, conspiracy and the making of false entries in bank reports.

Twenty-two true bills were returned in the second report of the federal grand jury that two months ago began delving into the circumstances and banking practices which the government contends, contributed to Michigan's banking debacle of 1933.

Twenty-five former officers or directors of the Detroit Bankers Company and its units are accused of misapplying $544,221.35 of bank funds through the purchase of inadequately insured bonds from other banks. Three others, former officers of the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc., are accused of making or conspiring to make a false report of the condition of the Union Industrial Trust and Savings bank, a Flint (Mich.) bank.

NAVY TO REDUCE AIRSHIP BUILDING

274 Fewer Planes To Be Built Than Called for in Vinson Bill.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(P)—The naval high command was disclosed authoritatively tonight to have determined on a sharp reduction in naval aviation construction.

Present plans, which may be altered, call for 274 fewer planes than the 1,284 which the navy had decided would be necessary under the Vinson bill authorizing a heavy strength navy by 1942. A thousand planes now comprise the naval air force, and plans had evolved to build the other 1,284 in annual installments.

High officials now have chopped down the total to a tentative figure of 1,910 planes as adequate for peace-time navy requirements. The total may be cut slightly again before a final one is reached.

The reduction includes 34 craft which would have been assigned to a proposed flying deck cruiser to be built by the navy to carry 1,910 one-officer ships. "We are merely endeavoring to work out a reasonable balance between ships, personnel and planes, and possibly a further small downward revision will be made."

"It should be emphasized that the 2,184 airplanes contemplated under the Vinson program was the total worked out to bring the navy to full treaty power, not the figure determined as sufficient for our needs in time of peace."

The revision in plans evoked particular interest in quarters that had shown some concern over Great Britain's announced intention to add 40 squadrons to her air force, a total of about 500 new planes.

Uncovering of the new plans followed a statement in which Secretary Swanson frankly told Japan and the world—that while the United States might favor a 1,910 of 20 per cent in naval armaments, it would oppose vigorously any realignment of existing naval ratios for the principal powers.

The secretary of the navy said he gave only his personal opinion, but high naval officers surrounded him as he spoke and apparently he laid down the position of his department—if not that of the administration.

"I take the same position I always have," Secretary Swanson said. "The naval powers met in London and distributed naval strength as they thought just and right. Naval strength is relative."

"If we abandon the ratios there is no telling where we shall go," Swanson's unequivocal statement.

'Cycle Rips Into Crowd Killing 2, Hurting 30

Suddenly Showell's cycle swerved and plowed through the crowd for 30 feet, leaving a trail of prostrate persons. The other machine crashed into an automobile just starting to the hospital with one of the injured.

Georgia Stands High In NRA, Says Director

On Wednesday, first anniversary of the NRA, the state compliance office announced it had reclaimed $16,000 in back wages to employees in Georgia, plus about $4,000 involved in pending cases.

W. L. Mitchell, state director, said there are 27,000 enterprises in the state and that 90 per cent of the employees are working under approved codes. The rest, with a few exceptions, operate under the president's re-employment agreement.

He added that Georgia stood high as a NRA state, and he considered it significant that most of the cases adjusted had been settled on advice of attorneys, although, as a whole, employers had recognized the fairness of the NRA policy.

Five-Cent Cigarettes Seen as Possibility

RALEIGH, N. C., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The five-cent package of cigarettes—unknown since the World War period—may again take its place on tobaccoists' shelves if a tax study made by the agricultural adjustment administration and revealed here today by J. B. Hutson, AAA tobacco section chief, bears fruit.

Speaking to a farmers' gathering, Hutson said the AAA was ready to suggest for consideration a graduated tax scale for cigarettes which would make possible the production and sale of a package of 15 for a nickel.

After making it clear he was not assuming to state the administration's policy, the AAA official said:

"We have given careful study to the general idea of reduction in tobacco taxes, over a period of months, and if a substantial reduction in the tax rate can be made, we suggest that consideration be given to it."

Cheek Wound Fatal To Mississippi Man

SEBASTOPOL, Miss., Aug. 1.—(AP)—John Ripley Pinter, 20, of Sebastopol, Miss., died in a hospital here today from an infected wound of the cheek, caused when a stick he used in striking a mule broke, a piece hitting him in the face.

Physicians said the infection developed into spinal meningitis and had progressed beyond relief by the time the youth was brought to the hospital.

Pinter's parents, three sisters and a brother, all of Sebastopol, survive.

Lindy Forced Down On Farmer's Field

BRUNSWICK, Me., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Dense fog forced Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh to land his plane on a farmer's field here yesterday, but except for the principals, no one knew of it until today.

Davis W. Douglas, owner of the field, said today Lindbergh, en route to New Jersey in a borrowed plane, landed on the field after Douglas' hired man had driven off the cows browsing there.

The flier came from North Haven, encountering heavy fog over this town. Colonel Lindbergh borrowed an automobile and continued his journey by motor.

RAIL PENSION BOARD COMES INTO EXISTENCE

Larger Carriers Plan Fight on Legality of Retirement Group.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Facing a fight by the larger railroads over constitutionality of the law creating it, the railroad retirement board came into existence today to handle a nation-wide plan for pensioning railroad workers.

Headed by Murray Latimer, of New York, as the government's representative, the board opened headquarters in the office of Joseph B. Eastman, federal co-ordinator of transportation. John T. Williamson, of Chicago, is the railroad representative on the board. Lee M. Eddy, of St. Louis, represents labor.

The board is to administer a fund created by assessment of 2 per cent on the salaries of the employees, with the railroads supplying an additional 4 per cent.

The first pensions will be granted on February 1, next year, unless the courts interfere.

The railroads are planning a bitter fight to prevent the law finally becoming effective. A committee composed of general counsel and vice presidents of the larger roads has been meeting in New York and Washington studying methods of attack on the statute. R. V. Fletcher, general counsel of the association of railway executives, heads the committee.

Fletcher was unworried today to say just what line the attack would take or when suit would be filed. It was regarded as probable, however, that the battle would get under way when the retirement board calls on the railroads for the first assessment.

Building of Modernized National Capital Is Pushed by Government of Manchukuo

Mansion of Lew Cody Auctioned for $15,010

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The estate of Lew C. Cody, motion picture actor, actually received only $10 in the sale at auction today of his Beverly Hills mansion, built at a cost of $50,000 by Pauline Frederick, star of the stars and screen.

Subject to approval of the public administrator, the rambling English Norman structure was sold to Robert M. Love for $15,010, but there were two mortgages totaling $15,000 against the property.

About 600 persons, mostly sightseers, gathered around the auctioneer as he placed the property on the block and set the opening bid at $15,000. He explained that no bids below the reserve would be accepted. Only one bid was made.

CAROLINIAN SUCCUMBS OF CRASH INJURIES

ST. GEORGE, S. C., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Dr. Pinckney V. Mikell, 58, of Columbia, S. C., is dead today of injuries suffered in an automobile accident near here late yesterday.

When his car turned over an embankment, Dr. Mikell was thrown through the top and was crushed about the head. He died shortly afterwards. E. M. Gilbert, of Savannah, Ga., passing the scene, picked Dr. Mikell up before he died.

The upper photo is a view of the new building housing the department of education at Hsinking, capital of Manchukuo. The lower picture shows horse carts carrying huge logs to be used in further construction works at Hsinking. All building undertaken by the Manchukuo government is being done with a minimum of machinery in order to provide more jobs.

(This is the fifteenth article of a series by Mr. Clarke on the Orient.)

By FRANCIS W. CLARKE.

Hsinking, Manchuria — (By Mail)—The new national capital of the state of Manchukuo is building on the outskirts of what was for more than a century the sleepy, unimportant town of Chan Chun, exemplifying the rapidity of the program planned to bring good government of an ultra modern type to one of the oldest peoples of the world.

Here where Ghengis Khan and the fighting men with whom he conquered all Asia and half of Europe were at home; where Mongols, Chinese and Russians have waged war with, and oftentimes conquered the sturdy and haughty Manchurians, the last few remnants of this race that has played so outstanding a part in eastern history are the spear head being used by Japan to carve out a new nation, as buffer state between herself, China and Russia. Behind the comparatively few blooded Manchus who are left, are some 30,000,000 Chinese who during the past quarter of a century have emigrated from their own war-torn country to live in the comparative peace and order of Manchuria.

10,000 at Work.

Hsinking in its present condition is reminiscent of Miami in the days of the Florida boom. Ten thousand laborers are at work laying out a modern city in the broad, fertile, level, lighted by four rows of ornamental white way lights, great buildings in every stage of construction and extensive parkways are the outstanding features.

Already majestic buildings to house the justice, education, foreign office and army department of the Manchukuo government have been completed, being built along modern lines with just enough of the oriental in their architecture not to entirely forsake the beauty of the architecture that has been handed down through the centuries. Around them are other structures, varying from these practically completed to others with the foundations just laid—while on the streets running from the great circle on which the government buildings stand are blocks of residences and apartments in which the officials and employees of the Manchukuo government are housed.

All of this in but a few months more than a year. An idea of the colossal job that is being performed is to be gained from the announcement that this year will see the completion of 2,087 new buildings, among them being the state council building, to cost 2,000,000 yen—about three quarters of a million dollars—the department of civil affairs, 800,000 yen, the Central Bank of Manchukuo, 6,500,000 yen, and several other governmental and business structures running from one to three million yen in cost. The housing of the government workers is one of the serious problems now faced by Manchukuo and more than 2,000 residences will be erected for them in Hsinking this year at a cost in excess of 7,500,000 yen.

Streets Being Paved.

In the meantime the wide boulevards already laid out are being paved, other streets are being graded, bridges, water reservoirs, a city market, a crematory and new water mains and sewers are coming along apace.

By the fall, after less than two years of work, a new city to house the government and furnish residences and shops for more than a half-million people will have arisen.

Under the direction of a specially created bureau of construction, the work of creating the new capital is proceeding in an orderly manner, despite the record-breaking haste with which it is being performed. The bureau has called in city planning experts of world-wide reputation, and the new capital that is now in the building will rival both in beauty and in the efficient design of the buildings and their grouping the most notable governmental centers of the world.

A mile-long boulevard, parked in the center and on both sides, and wide enough to carry six lanes of traffic, there will be a great circle on which the most important of the governmental buildings will stand. Grouped around these will be the lesser buildings, while overlooking the entire group from a near-by hill will be the new palace for the emperor who was crowned last March.

In Two Years' Time.

All of this in two years' time and with a balanced budget for both years—in a country in which the farmers and storekeepers were poverty stricken as the result of a long period of oppression by Chinese war lords who piled tax upon tax in order that they might support huge armies and spend money like multi-millionaires.

The Manchuria of today is far different, in appearance and in actual conditions than it was five or even two years ago. What it will be five years from now, when the construction program of the new government will have been completed in its first stage is an intriguing thought.

No more does one hear in Manchukuo talk of war or of diplomatic recognition by the governments of the world, because everybody is too busy, from the premier down to the humblest governmental clerk—and because they can see rising beneath their gaze the dream of a new nation, carved out of the backwardness and degradation of the past.

The world may well keep its eyes on Manchukuo, because here are going on developments the influence of which is certain to be felt in the four corners of the universe.

FUMES OF AMMONIA LEAK INTO BUILDING

A leaking ammonia pipe in the refrigerating system of the Hurt building Wednesday morning threatened to precipitate a general exodus of clerks and stenographers until firemen with gas masks arrived and turned off the flow.

The upper floors of the building were filling rapidly with the fumes and a call was sent in for the fire department. Two men equipped with masks located the leak and shut off the ammonia.

DANGEROUS ISLANDS CLAIM ANOTHER SHIP

PAPEETE, Tahiti, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The "dangerous archipelago"—known in the south seas as the Tuamotu group of islands—has claimed another victim, this time the inter-island steamer Ville de Papeete, which is a total loss on the reef at Haraki island, 300 miles east of here.

All those aboard reached shore safely.

REPUBLICANS BEATEN, CLAIMS FARLEY'S AID

They 'Haven't a Chance' in Fall Voting, According to 'the Book.'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Emil Hurja thumbed today through a limp leather, loose-leaf book that he calls his campaign bible and said: "The republicans haven't a chance."

Hurja, who is Farley's right-hand man on political matters, sat amid the hum of democratic headquarters—a hum growing more intense in preparation for the drive to clinch the New Deal in November.

Hurja is in charge of headquarters. The book he thumbed contains a mass of information on the prospects of every democratic and republican candidate for the 35 senate and 435 house seats to be filled for the seventy-fourth congress.

Keep in Touch.

On the basis of a questionnaire and a nation-wide poll, democratic headquarters knows the problems confronting every democratic candidate and what assistance they think they need to defeat republicans.

The committee has a check on the sentiment in each congressional district toward the New Deal. President Roosevelt's personal popularity, and the congressional candidates.

Further, it knows exactly how much patronage, public work and relief allotments, and crop reduction payments have gone into each district and state. Right beside this information is a record of the votes cast by every democratic house and senate member in the seventy-third congress. Emphasis is placed on those who voted to override the president's veto of the independent offices-veterans relief bill. That act passed by a two-thirds vote in both houses.

Up to Minute.

All this data which is kept up to the minute and cross-checked, is tabulated in Hurja's book.

He said it proved that the president is more popular than ever. To illustrate, he said that out of 33 democratic representatives in strictly northern states who voted to sustain the president's veto of the veterans' relief

Al Smith May Quit N. Y. Reform Group

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Alfred E. Smith is prepared to resign from the city charter revision commission, it was learned authoritatively tonight, unless his proposals for municipal reform are adopted.

Smith is chairman of the commission, appointed last spring by Governor Lehman and the state legislature to modernize the government under which the nation's metropolis operates. The former governor and Samuel Seabury, power behind the LaGuardia administration, urged the unification of the board of aldermen and the board of estimate, but these and other changes were voted down by their colleagues last night.

If the commission of 28 members refuses to reconsider the action at a meeting tomorrow, it was learned, Smith will tender a letter of resignation which he already has drafted.

There were reports that Seabury was prepared to take a similar step, but at the attorney's office inquiries were referred to Smith. The latter could not be reached directly.

bill, five were senatorial candidates and another was a prospect.

"Most of those who voted to override the president's veto thought it was necessary to get the veterans' vote," Hurja said. "But it was a double-bitted ax which cut both ways. Those who voted to override the veto are being criticized for not standing by the president."

AUSTRIA 'MOPS UP'
NAZI OPPOSITIONNoose and Empty Pay
Envelopes Strike at Government Foes.

VIENNA, Aug. 1.—(AP)—With the hangman's rope, a sentence of imprisonment and empty pay envelopes, the government of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg today pressed its fight against the defeated Nazi rebels of Austria.

Friedrich Wurmig, a Nazi, was hanged at 8 o'clock tonight at Innsbruck, three hours after he was sentenced to death for killing Police Commandant Franz Hinkel in that city Wednesday.

Third To Die.

Wurmig, the third Nazi to die on the gallows in two days, collapsed when he was told that clemency was refused and had to be carried to the gallows. Although his crime occurred about the same time that Chancellor Dollfuss was killed by Nazi putschists, it had no direct connection with that outbreak.

An alleged accomplice, Christian Meyer, was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment, receiving clemency. It was reported, because he had revealed Nazi secrets to the government.

Trial of another Nazi is scheduled to begin here tomorrow.

Economic pressure against Nazis in Germany employ was ordered.

Pay Withheld.

The salaries of all persons in the public employ who are suspected of aiding or encouraging the Nazi revolt will be withheld.

The suspects will be denounced, the order says, to the nearest police station, and will remain without pay until their cases are investigated.

The order recalled that 20 federal employees were reported to have cried "Heil Hitler" when the Nazi putschists seized the chancellery last Wednesday.

Von Papen Decision Withheld.

Decision as to acceptance by the new government of Franz Von Papen as special German minister was held up today.

This friendly gesture of Chancellor Hitler remains unrecognized, and it was said in government circles that it is expected nothing will be done during the uncertainty with respect to President Von Hindenburg.

Just what per cent of the public employees will be affected by the anti-Nazi drive within their ranks could not be established today.

Police executives denied today a report that Dr. Anton Rintelen, pro-Nazi former minister to Rome, had "confessed" to taking part in the putsch.

Dr. Rintelen, who was wounded after he was arrested, said stuck to his story that he was innocent of any part in the activities of the rebels who mentioned him as Dollfuss' successor.

The Atlanta prizes include a first prize of a free trip to Dayton, where the national race will be run on August 18, and a loving cup. The winner of the Atlanta prize will be an entrant at Dayton, where boys from 35 to 45 years of age will compete.

The second prize will be $25 in cash and a loving cup, and the third will be $10 and a cup. Fourth, fifth and sixth prizes will be tickets each to see "Treasure Island" at Loew's Grand.

Several additional prizes will be given to winners in the preliminary trials, and Loew's Grand will entertain the finalists at a free show at a later date.

Rich's will furnish the finalists with helmets.

In practice runs which were made Wednesday, the boys demonstrated that a soap box car is capable, given sufficient grade and mechanical excellence, of a high rate of speed.

The race will be one of the most unique ever staged here, and a tremendous attendance is expected both at the preliminaries and the finals.

as the greetings and the hopes of the whole German people.

As Hitler raced back for a special cabinet meeting tonight he brought perhaps a farewell message from the old soldier or a political will and testament.

Chancellor Tired.

The chancellor appeared tired and worried when he returned, and went at once to his office.

Hitler stated the president was able to shake hands with him and that he was still fully conscious at the time of the visit early in the afternoon.

The sinking spell came later.

Hitler said he told Von Hindenburg that the entire nation was hoping and praying for him. They clasped hands, the president in acknowledgment, and Von Hindenburg later fell asleep.

Concern in Von Hindenburg's condition pushed into the background all other considerations in Germany.

Issues Forgotten.

The Austrian question, and Franz Von Papen's wait for the still lacking acceptance as minister to Austria caused less than a ripple.

Thesquable with Italy over the Austrian outbreaks and the economic worries of the Reich were forgotten for the time being.

Interest extended beyond the president's health to the question of just how Hitler would proceed to legalize to 45 cents per pound, compared to last year's opening prices of 3 to 15 cents.

One planter reported that his harvest from one acre brought from 10 to 12 cents to 45 cents per pound, averaging $27.61 per hundred pounds. Another grower said his scraps last year brought from 6 to 8 cents, while today he received from 16 to 32 cents per pound.

More than 98 per cent of the growers eligible to sign acreage reduction contracts with the government have done so, it has been estimated. Between 5 and 6 per cent of Georgia's growers are not under contract. There are approximately 12,200 tobacco growers in Georgia.

Three warehouses at Habersham said a total of 92,000 pounds were sold at an unofficial average of 24.15 cents. Unofficially it was reported here that 419,544 pounds were sold on the local market for an average of $24.47 per hundred pounds with total receipts of $102,690.51. Last year's opening figures were $23,688 pounds sold at an average of $12.27 for a total of $289,226.

The Hazlehurst market said approximately 300,000 pounds were sold there for an unofficial average of 20 cents, and market officials at Pelham reported that sales of about 100,000 pounds, with tickets showing an unofficial price of seven cents for damaged grades and 32 cents for the better offerings.

Sales estimated at 450,000 pounds were reported at Nashville with market observers placing the unofficial average price paid at 24 cents.

Walmesley Quickly Answered.

Mayor Walmesley quickly answered the new thrust of the Long-controlled governor.

"The proclamation of the governor apparently is designed to usurp powers, duties and functions of the district attorney," he said. "I particularly note the governor's inclusion of graft and paid for operation of gambling devices in the parishes surrounding Orleans."

The mayor has charged that Senator Long is connected with the operation of luxurious casinos in nearby parishes, which have ceased operation along with city establishments since the present police law started.

500 New Police Mustered.

Five hundred new police were called to duty from the civil service lists by Mayor Walmesley early this morning, in addition to 400 others summoned last night. Each man was given full arms, including riot guns, all furloughs were cancelled and the force went on a 12-hour shift for the first time in 15 years.

Scores of the police were stationed in city hall, across the street from the city hall annex where the militia occupied the registration office behind mounted machine guns.

Senator Long's radio offer of last night to compromise on the membership of the new police board by setting up a board of seven men, named by seven civic organizations. The city has charged that irregularities marked the passage of the act.

The current dispute between Long and Walmesley is preliminary to the September congressional elections, in which the two have rival slates of candidates. Allies until last December, the mayor and senator broke over the make-up of a municipal ticket and the Long forces were badly beaten by the Walmesley old regulars in the January primary.

Reprisals on both sides have recurred ever since, the latest being Senator Long's installation of the militia in the registration office here where the riot are being prepared for the September vote. Long said last night he had caused more than 25,000 illegally registered persons to be scratched from the books.

TENNESSEE PICKS
CANDIDATES TODAYNominations for Governor, Senators, Rail Commissioners To Be Made.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Nominations for governor, two United States senators and two state railroad commissioners will be made tomorrow by Tennessee Democrats and Republicans in simultaneous statewide primaries. Candidates for nine seats in the national house of representatives and 132 in the legislature also will be chosen.

Estimates of the vote in the democratic primary ranged from 240,000 to 260,000, and in the republican from 100,000 to 150,000. There is only one statewide republican contest.

Chief interest centered tonight in the race between Governor Hill McAlister and Lewis S. Pope, Nashville lawyer, for the democratic gubernatorial nomination for a two-year term, and in the contest between Senator Nathan L. Bachman and Representative Gordon Browning, of Huntingdon, for democratic nomination to the senate for the two years remaining of the term for which Cordell Hull was elected.

Bachman was appointed by Governor McAlister when Hull resigned early last year to enter the Roosevelt cabinet and by virtue of that appointment will serve until the November election. Both Bachman and Browning pledge full co-operation with the president, but have attacked the legislative records of each other.

Senator McKellar, the first to be elected from Tennessee by direct vote of the people, has made scarcely no campaign for democratic renomination to the seat he has held continuously since 1917, though he has spoken in behalf of Senator Bachman and Governor McAlister. McKellar's opponent in the six-year term race is Dr. John R. Neal, of Knoxville, chief of defense counsel in the Dayton evolution trial.

McAlister and Pope have run against each other several times. Both were in the primary of 1928, when Governor Henry H. Horton was nominated. They contested again in 1932 and after the primary Pope unsuccessfully challenged McAlister's nomination on charges of fraud. Then Pope ran as an independent in the general election, but lost.

Republican Candidates.

The democratic nominee will face either John E. McCall, of Memphis, or Will H. Clarke, of Jonesboro, who are seeking the republican nomination for governor.

"FAMOUS FRIENDSHIPS"

Edison, Ford
and Firestone

● Twentieth century business produced a modern version of "The Three Musketeers" in Edison, Ford and Firestone, and though Edison is gone, the memory of him remains vivid.

THE friendship of these three was bound by the fact that, although great, rich and powerful, they were simple men at heart, and their vacation camping trips during the summers of 1915-1924 are famous for their informality.

OUR chief characters present many contrasts: Ford is an idealist. Edison was a great chemist, inventor, original thinker. Firestone is a modern clear-headed business man.

IN his memoirs Firestone wrote: "... Out of all the association with these great men, one precept stands out above all others—it is the reason why they are great; it is this: 'Go it alone.' Don't fail to try because someone else has tried and failed."

PITTMAN RENEWS TALMADGE ATTACK

Candidate at Thomson Continues Fight on Governor's Policies.

THOMSON, Ga., Aug. 1.—Coming into McDuflie county, Judge Claude C. Pittman, of Carterville, one of Governor Talmadge's two opponents for reelection, today renewed his attacks on the Talmadge administration and repeated his charges against the governor's associates.

The Carterville candidate preceded Governor Talmadge here by a week as the chief executive is scheduled to make the fifth address of his campaign in Thomson next Wednesday.

Judge Pittman was introduced by J. B. Burnside, member of a well-known McDuflie county family who hailed him as the next governor of Georgia, asserting:

"Judge Pittman is a man of courage, honor and integrity. He is of unimpeachable character and he will be the next governor of Georgia. The days of the Talmadge administration are nearing their end."

"The people of Georgia have come to the conclusion that the decision they must make upon September 12 is whether or not they support President Roosevelt and all that he stands for."

Judge Pittman reviewed his attack upon Governor Talmadge for his failure to order a uniform reduction in automobile taxes, which would have forced the heavy commercial trucks and busses to pay a reasonable price for their use of the highways.

"Governor Talmadge believes a $10 T-model should pay the same tag (tax) as the palatial bus and the road-going trucks," he said. "My position is that the little man should have his tag at a price not to exceed $5, but that the big man should pay more commensurate with the greater use of the highways built with the money of the people of Georgia."

Judge Pittman once more charged the existence of a "pardon racket," declaring that Governor Talmadge in his three public addresses had not even taken the trouble to deny it. On the contrary, he said, Governor Talmadge had admitted brazenly that his close friends represented pardon seekers before him.

"When they need money to help them try to beat me," Judge Pittman said, "they just turned out a few more thieves and murderers."

"I can't combat them with money, but I can lay the facts before the straight-thinking, fair-minded people of Georgia and ask their help in cleaning out the most corrupt administration of the oldest citizenry."

"If Governor Talmadge is re-elected to office on September 12, it will be an act that will be hailed with the wildest enthusiasm and joy by the republicans. They can point out that President Roosevelt's part-time home has turned against him and put the stamp of approval on a man who has been his bitter opponent in every thing he has done for the good of the people."

"The governor claims that he reduced power and light rates. This position is absurd. We all know that the power company would never have agreed to these rates at the mere demand of Talmadge."

"Authority over Washington caused these rates to be reduced, and Governor Talmadge knows it and knows the people are beginning to find it out, too."

ATHENS BUS PROTEST TO BE HEARD FRIDAY

ATHENS, Ga., Aug. 1.—(AP)—The Athens city council will meet on Friday, August 3, to take action on the city bus situation and to hear a protest by citizens against the council's action giving the Georgia Power Company permission to cease bus operation. Opponents of the suggestion to discontinue bus service want the city council to do something about restoring it.

Citizens here were interested in the situation at Macon where the city council of that city last night discarded an ordinance proposed by the Georgia Power Company for the substitution of bus for street car transportation in Macon.

Local officials of the company made no comment today and it was thought that they had received no report on the matter.

Dr. Bowdoin Rounds Out 50 Years As Adairsville Constitution Scribe

ADAIRSVILLE, Ga., Aug. 1.—Dr. Joe P. Bowdoin, prominent local citizen and member of the staff of the Georgia board of health, today celebrated his fiftieth anniversary as local correspondent for The Atlanta Constitution and as proof of his authority to send in the news, he proudly displayed a letter written by Henry W. Grady and dated August 1, 1884.

The letter was as follows: "Mr. Joe P. Bowdoin, Adairsville, Ga. Dear Sir—All right, go ahead with correspondence. Keep up posted on the happenings in and around Adairsville and on the growth of Adairsville."

"The paper will start to you at once."

"Tours truly," "H. W. GRADY."

Dr. Bowdoin states that the paper started and has been coming to him regularly ever since, without a break in date and without a break in his service as correspondent. He is one of the oldest correspondents in point of service on the paper, he states.

Dr. Bowdoin recalled today the great changes wrought in news-gathering over the 50 years he has served as a correspondent, pointing out that practices of all news in 1884 were sent by mail. "Now we have the mail, telephone, radio and air-planes," he said.

Two thousand feet of lumber for the repair and upkeep of his buildings are used each year by the average farmer, Professor Marchworth continued. He said the farmer is one of the largest users of lumber.

Loy A. Rast, director of the project, pointed out that "the effects of sheet erosion are continually increasing by tillage and cropping operations." Unprotected fields commonly lose from 35 to 40 tons of soil an acre each year.

To stop the washing away of top soil, engineers, agronomists and other workers are building terraces, putting dams in washes and planting thick-growing plants. Dams are built of logs and rocks, some even being made of poultry wire. One farmer even used old fence wire, throwing Barbed wire above it. Recent rains showed it to be satisfactory.

Methods used on the farms are simple and inexpensive, in order to allow growing farmers to carry out the control themselves, once they are given the necessary information, officials said.

Farmers also were shown the artificial reforestation demonstration tract on the Danielsville road. Transplanted in 1929 by Dupre Barrett, extension forester, it is now preventing soil loss.

Restore Plant Food. "We hope to restore and maintain plant food in the soil," he said, "and to increase the fertility of the soil in rural areas, develop and conserve resources, reduce cultivated crops and substitute non-cultivated crops."

The abandonment of a total of one million acres of farm lands in Georgia during the decade between 1920 and 1930 was largely due to poor management of the soil, Dr. Marchworth said.

Speaking before the land utilization section of the conference, Professor Marchworth said that much land was placed in cultivation which, because of its very nature, was doomed to failure. He said such land should have been left in timber.

He was rushed to Grady hospital but was pronounced dead upon arrival. Those near him at the time he collapsed, said he was dead before he was put into the ambulance.

HADEN ADVOCATES SCALING OF DEBTS DUE BY FARMERS

A plan for the re-distribution and scaling down of farm debts which, if adopted, should release between five and six million dollars in Georgia this year was outlined in a brief radio talk Wednesday afternoon by Charles J. Haden, chairman of the Farm Debt Adjustment Commission for Georgia.

Mr. Haden stated that a survey of the debt problems of the farmers of the state revealed that in most cases the farmers owed from 25 to 40 per cent more than they could borrow from the government. The plan which he outlined contained the suggestion that creditors scale down the debt to a point where all creditors could be paid out of what the farmer was able to borrow from the government. This plan, Mr. Haden said, would enable approximately 5,000 farmers in Georgia to pay off their outstanding debts and own their own land again, this obligation being taken care of on a long term, light interest note.

In addition to ridding the farmer of a number of pressing obligations, Mr. Haden pointed out, the plan would put into circulation approximately five or six million dollars which would be applied in channels where most needed at this time.

DOUG DAVIS TO FLY WEDELL'S AIRPLANE IN BIG BENDIX RACE

Doug Davis, pilot on the Atlanta-New Orleans Eastern Air Lines route, will fly the late Jimmy Wedell's champion land plane in the Bendix trophy race from Los Angeles, Cal., to Cleveland, Ohio, August 31, he announced Wednesday.

The Wedell-Williams Special, of 800 horsepower, attained 300 miles per hour in breaking the land plane record. Davis, following the Bendix trophy race, will enter the national air races at Cleveland from August 31 to September 3, entering the Thompson trophy race, which he won in 1929 with his "Mystery Ship."

If Davis has a substantial enough lead when he reaches Cleveland from Los Angeles, he said, he will continue to New York in an effort to break the transcontinental record set by Colonel Roscoe Turner at 10 hours.

"FRIENDS" OF VICTIM HELD AFTER ROBBERY

M. G. Judge, of 668 Ashby street, S. W., was minus an expensive watch and $8 Wednesday, while two newly-made friends of Tuesday night were being held by county police on suspicion, as the result of a robbery at North Side drive and Pace's Ferry road early Wednesday morning.

Judge and his two friends, they told police, met two other men at a beer parlor and were invited to take a ride. They were held up and forced out of the car. County Policemen John Carter and Otis Smith, assigned to investigate, were curious as to why W. L. Dupree, of Heard's Ferry road, and G. H. Meyer, of a MacAcie street address, lost no money to the two hold-up men, and requested city police to hold them on "suspicion."

Both men deny that they knew the holdup men and assert their money was overlooked by the bandits. Judge made their acquaintance in a pool room, he said.

'OLD-TIME' CONVENTION PLANNED BY B. Y. P. U.

An "old-time" state B. Y. P. U. convention is planned for Macon during the week-end following Thanksgiving, according to action of the state B. Y. P. U. executive committee announced Wednesday by Edwin S. Preston, of Atlanta, state B. Y. P. U. secretary. This convention will not affect the plans for a state B. Y. P. U. encampment with which this meeting has been merged during the last six years. Outstanding speakers from throughout the south are being sought for the three-day program.

Dr. T. Baron Gibson, of Canton, is president of the state B. Y. P. U. convention, completing this year his third term in that office. Other members of the state B. Y. P. U. executive committee which took action this week in designating Macon as the place of meeting for the state convention, are: J. L. Baggett, Hawkinsville; Louis D. Newton, Atlanta; Walter Ward, Atlanta; James W. Merritt, Atlanta; B. J. Stephens, Rome; Marshall Neils, Hartwell; L. Gloer Bailey, Atlanta; C. C. Thomas, Newnan; R. C. Tobacco Code Prices Not Yet in Effect

P. J. McGuire, secretary of the state code authority for tobacco retailers, Wednesday said the date for the merchandising provisions of the tobacco code to become effective has been delayed.

McGuire said many retailers understood the code for cigars was to go into effect yesterday, but that the delay had been made necessary to permit manufacturers to file a list of minimum prices for each brand manufactured. These lists must be in the hands of the retailers before the code can become effective.

In Georgia the retailers are interested in the merchandising provisions of the code because of the consumers tax of 10 per cent to be added, McGuire said. The consumers levy added to the code price of two-to-five-cent cigars would be boosted to two for 6 cents, while the price of nickel cigars would be increased to 6 cents, or two for 11 cents.

PETS OF ALL KINDS TO VIE FOR PRIZES AT FERA EXHIBITS

Pets with pedigrees running back to the Garden of Eden won't have a shade of favor over "Bozo," the dog with a trace of every breed in his flea-bitten carcass when they're exhibited side-by-side Thursday night at pet shows at the city's 21 playgrounds, sponsored by the department of recreation, FERA.

Bozo and his mixed-breed brothers will be on a par with the more favored show dogs when the judges, prominent citizens of the various communities, parade down the exhibit line in search of the best-reared for animal. First, second and third prize ribbons will be awarded by the Atlanta Humane Society for pets in each class.

Cats, pigeons, rats, ducks, snakes, parrots and other pets will be exhibited in the six divisions, divided into a division for large dogs, one for small dogs, one for cats, a fourth for birds and two divisions for reptiles and miscellaneous animals. Dogs must be exhibited on leashes.

PWA Loan Meeting Delayed by Regents

The meeting of the board of regents of the University System of Georgia to approve a contract with the federal public works administration for a loan and grant of $2,500,000, which had been set for Friday, has been postponed until next week, the exact time to be announced later.

The board's building committee met Wednesday with the committee chairman, Major Clark Howell Jr., and prepared a report which will be submitted at next week's meeting. The $2,500,000 to be acquired from the PWA will be used for additions and improvements to the units of the university system.

NEGRO ARRESTED ON MANY CHARGES AFTER WILD CHASE

A spectacular chase by motorcycle officers which began on Marietta street and ended beyond Bolton on Wednesday landed a negro, John Hunter, of Blandtown, behind the bars at police station on charges of speeding, reckless driving, disorderly conduct and possessing whisky.

Motorcycle Officers J. P. Nabors and J. R. Haney first saw the alleged speeding car on Marietta street and, with sirens wide open, chased it into Cobb county where the race ended in a barrage of bullets and liquor cans. Patrolman Nabors reported that cans of whisky were dumped out of the car into the path of his motorcycle in an apparent effort to wreck him. Beyond Bolton he closed in on the car, despite the firing cans, and shot the rear tires down.

Hunter was the alleged driver of the machine according to police reports. He posted a $200 bond.

Reporters Kept From Jobs By Daytime Jail Terms

American Newspaper Guild Secretary Demands Intervention by Governor Laffoon.

DANVILLE, Ky., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Jail sentences for contempt of court in refusing to break a newspaper confidence were changed from night time to daylight hours for Jack Durham and Wesley Cart, Danville newspapermen, today and were followed by an offer from the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times to lend a staff man to the Danville Advocate necessary to fill in for Cart, its city editor.

Governor Ruby Laffoon, at Frankfort, who received a telegram from Johnathan Eddy, executive secretary of the American Newspaper Guild in New York, said he might reply to Eddy but indicated he had no authority to interfere in a contempt case. Eddy wired the governor today protesting against the daily jail sentences as a "travesty on justice" and asking the chief executive to intervene.

Cart and Durham have been sent to jail daily since July 24, except yesterday, when they were fined $3 each, from three to six hours as each day. Police Judge Jay W. Harlan renewed his court of inquiry into the hanging in effigy here of Representative J. Sterling Towles and they declined to tell who tipped them in advance about the affair. Prior to today they had been called before the court at 4 p. m. and served their jail sentences in the late day and night. Today, however, they were called up at 9 a. m. and went to jail about 9:30 o'clock for six hours. That prevented them from working today.

The Louisville Courier-Journal and Times offer of a staff man was made in a telegram to George A. Joplin Jr., Somerset publisher and president of the Kentucky Press Association, who had written the Danville newspapermen offering to aid them if necessary. The papers' telegram said: "The Courier-Journal and Louisville Times stand ready to loan a staff member to the publisher of the Danville Advocate for two weeks if an emergency has been created by Judge Jay W. Harlan's daily sentences of its city editor, Wesley Cart, to jail during working hours on charges of contempt of court."

Dr. Marion Luther Britain, who has been associated with Georgia schools since his graduation at Emory

DR. M. L. BRITAIN.

University 46 years ago, Wednesday celebrated his twelfth anniversary as president of Georgia Tech.

It was on August 1, 1922, that Dr. Britain's election to head Georgia Tech became effective and he has served in that capacity ever since. Under him Georgia Tech has graduated its largest class and he has been instrumental in putting several new buildings on the campus, principally the dining hall which bears his name. Dr. Britain also took a prominent part in getting $300,000 from the Guggenheim board for a department of aeronautical engineering at Tech.

Born in Wilkes county, he attended Emory at Oxford and after his graduation became principal of the Crew Street school in Atlanta. In 1880 he became head of the department of languages at Boys' High school and in 1900 he was made superintendent of Fulton county high schools. In 1910 Dr. Britain became state school commissioner and served in that position until the next year when he was made state superintendent of schools.

He remained state superintendent until he was elected president of Georgia Tech.

Dr. Britain is a member of the National Scholastic fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa, and is a member of Kappa Alpha, social fraternity.

1,220 JULY ARRESTS FOR TRAFFIC SQUAD

A record in traffic arrests was believed established during July by Lieutenant R. H. "Reggie" McLean and his motorcycle traffic squad when they apprehended 1,220 violators. This figure compared to 740 arrests during June.

Lieutenant McLean, recently appointed in charge of the 22 officers, in his report to Chief T. O. Sturdivant declared that 355 persons were charged with failing to stop at a boulevard stop while 259 were arrested for speeding. Only 80, however, were charged with reckless driving.

The squad made 53 arrests on disorderly conduct charges and 43 were charged with intoxication. The total revenue received by the city through the efforts of Lieutenant McLean and his officers was $4,341.

Bringing to a close one of the most successful camps the 326th Infantry has had, 34 Atlanta reserve officers under the command of Colonel F. S. Two 15-Year-Old Boys Admit Ohio Killing CANTON, Ohio, Aug. 1.—(AP)—A pair of 15-year-old boys, members of respected Massillon families, late today were charged with a calculated murder of their employer, Ernest Swartz, 33, of Pittsburgh, a gold buyer and plumber.

He was killed in a longly farm lane near East Canton, a suburb of Canton, last night.

The two boys, who were said by Sheriff George Dailey to have confessed readily after their arrest, were quoted as saying they had planned to cover their crime by tossing Swartz's body into an abandoned clay mine near the scene of the killing and take his money and automobile and go to Arizona.

They were identified by authorities as William Lloyd Gruber and Willard Tschan.

Swartz, father of four small children, had hired the two boys to look for prospects, their pay to come from commissions on all purchases of gold.

Air Express Leaves For Latin-Americas

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 1.—(AP)—Red tape snipped away by international agreement, simplified air express service became available today between the United States and 32 Latin-American countries and colonies.

The initial shipment of air express, nearly 300 parcels bearing a single bill of lading instead of the many consular and custom documents that once were a requisite, left here this morning.

The departure of the first plane load was attended by some ceremony.

President Roosevelt's aviation commission was present, as were greater Miami's consular corps and city officials.

Gifts were dispatched aboard the plane to Latin-American officials from the Florida state chamber of commerce, the mayor of Tampa and the Tampa Chamber of Commerce, as well as Greater Miami officials.

STATE DRY REPEAL URGED BY GILLIAM BEFORE VETERANS

Speaking last night by invitation to the Associated War Veterans of Atlanta, Ed A. Gilliam, candidate for governor, discussed the prohibition repeal plank of his platform and especially stressed the fact that the people of Georgia have never voted on the subject.

"The original state-wide prohibition law enacted by the Georgia legislature in 1907 was not the outcome of a mandate by the people. It came about as the result of two forces operating upon the general assembly."

"One of these forces was the Anti-Saloon League and the other was the desire of employers of colored labor to take liquor away from that element of our population."

"The Georgia bone-dry law has deprived nobody of liquor. It is a prohibition law in name only."

"The politicians of Georgia, with some few exceptions, have avoided the prohibition issue as they would a plague, but I have found in this campaign that the people are not afraid of it. If they were given an opportunity to vote on the clean-cut issue of repeal, I believe a large majority would vote to put an end to the present law and the vicious conditions which it has created."

ATLANTA UNIVERSITY FACULTY MAN DIES

300 BELIEVED LOST IN KOREAN FLOODS

TOKYO, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The Korean government-general announced today that more than 300 persons are dead or missing following recent floods in south Korea. The losses were estimated at about $9,000,000. It was announced that 12,000 houses were swept away, 53,000 inundated, and more than 300,000 acres of farms had been destroyed.

Dillinger's Body To Be Exhumed; Scientists Believed Interested

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug. 1.—(AP)—John Dillinger Sr. today sought and obtained permission to disinter the body of his son, "Wooden Gun John." Accompanied by his attorney, Samuel J. Mantell, the 70-year-old father of the slain desperado went to the state board of health and filled out forms necessary for exhumation of the body which was buried last week in Crown Hill cemetery here.

He gave no reason for wanting to disinter the body and later between stage appearances at a local theater he declined to discuss the matter. He would only say the action was taken following communication with some persons in Chicago. He refused to name these persons.

"I have the permit," said the father, "but I haven't decided yet whether to use it."

During his stage appearances the father says: "There isn't enough money in the world to get me to place my boy's body on exhibition."

Shortly after Dillinger's body was brought to his home town of Mooresville, Ind., to be prepared for burial the father revealed he had received an offer of $10,000 from two promoters who desired to place the body on exhibition.

The father rejected this offer saying: "I don't like things like that."

The application to exhume the body came shortly after Frank J. Walsh, coroner, at Chicago, had revealed that scientists under his direction were studying parts of the brain and vital organs of the bandit.

The coroner said an ounce or two of the criminal's brain and parts of his lungs, heart and kidneys had been removed soon after he had been shot and killed at Chicago. The coroner added that pathologists were examining the organs to determine whether Dillinger's anti-social tendencies might be attributed to abnormality or disease.

The father declined to say whether

1st Night From Vatican Spent by Pope Pius

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Italy, Aug. 1.—(AP)—The reverential salutes of hundreds of peasants greeted Pope Pius XI as he arrived tonight at this quaint village, perched on the side of the Alban hills, to take up residence for the summer in the beautiful papal villa here.

Without ceremony or fanfare, his holiness shortly before sunset motored from the Vatican 17 miles away. Tonight was the first night since his ascendency to the papal throne that he has not slept in the Vatican.

The father is appearing at the theater here six times daily with his daughter, Mrs. Audrey Hancock, and her husband, Emmett Hancock, and Hubert Dillinger, half-brother of the desperado.

Negotiations are being made for appearance of the Dillinger family at the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago next week.

MILLIONAIRE RETAINS CUSTODY OF DAUGHTER

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 1.—(AP)—Little Des Cygnes L'Amour Gilcrease, daughter of a former "Miss America" and an oil millionaire, can't go to France, but she remains in the custody of her father.

That was the ruling today of Oklahoma's supreme court, pending final disposition of the divorce case of the former Norma Smallwood, 1926 Atlantic City beauty contest winner and Thomas Gilcrease, of Tulsa, oil operator.

"He just wants to take her to France so he'll be outside the jurisdiction of Oklahoma courts," Mrs. Gilcrease said, after obtaining a writ that stopped Gilcrease and the child on the eve of their departure for Paris.

Kirkwood League Juniors Present Impressive Fantasy

In a beautiful fantasy portraying God's gifts to the world, the junior department of the Kirkwood Civic League on Friday evening, presented to an appreciative audience in Kirkwood school auditorium, the result of their first activities since their organization the last Friday in June.

The plot around which the fantasy was written by Mrs. Natalie Buchanan, of the Buchanan School of Music and Expression, who is also chairman of drama of Kirkwood Civic League, and was designed to give each member of the department some training in expression.

During the exposition, Spirit of Goodwill challenges Mother Nature to name God's best gift to the world. Mother Nature dispatches her attendants, Youth, Truth, Modesty, Beauty, Hope, Joy, Constancy, Faith and Purity, to bring before her God's wonderful gifts to the world, so that she may answer Goodwill.

Spring, Summer, Autumn and Winter, as well as Forest, Sunshine, Night, Friendship, Righteousness, Education, Dreams, Music, Liberty, Rainbow, Mirth, Wit and Humor are brought to the court of Mother Nature and, with their little attendants, demonstrate their office and influence in the world. Then comes Love presenting to the court, a little child, and Mother Nature proclaims children as God's greatest gift to the world. Each group remained at court after being presented, and the curtain goes down upon this impressive scene but rises again to reveal an inspiring tableau of the nativity.

The next meeting of the junior department will be held at the home of the president, Miss Martha Knox, at 228 Oxford place, N. E., on Friday, August 24, at 3:30 o'clock, when Mrs. Murray Howard, junior department chairman of the fifth district of Georgia Federation of Women's Club, will be speaker.

The guests were Misses Knox, Perkins, Morton, of Lynchburg, Va.; Suzanne Knox, Mesdames Grover Middlebrooks, Everard Richardson Jr., Fritz Orr, Harry Thompson, Cecil Powell, of Jacksonville; Clement Evans, John Knox, Martin Kilpatrick, Ralph Williams and Dupuis McLarm.

Mrs. Frieberg Honors Daughter at Dance.

Mrs. J. A. Frieberg entertained at a surprise birthday dance Tuesday evening at her home, 388 Boulevard, in compliment to her daughter, Miss Etta Ruth Frieberg.

A pink and green color motif featured the decorations of garden flowers in the apartments where the guests were received. Supper was served at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. Frieberg was assisted in receiving her guests by her mother, Mrs. A. Marks, of New York, who is her guest, and Miss Beatrice Mack, of Baltimore, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. M. Leskoff.

Invited to meet Miss Frieberg were Misses Beatrice Mack, Beatha Shaffer, Emma Corn, Janet Silberman, Bloomie Mark, Frances Parol, Bert Glantz, Sam Goldberg, Joe Harlick, Ted Davidson, Sidney Tates, Sidney Fobelson, Abe Andrews, the Segal, Seymour Kessler, Willie Solomon, Arthur Frieberg and Leonard Frieberg.

Dear Mable:-
I am sure happy now. After we left the ocean yesterday, I stopped at the Drug Store and bought a bottle of "KURTO". I painted some of it on these bad feet of mine, and now all signs of "Athletes Foot" is gone. Why don't you try it. If your drug store doesn't have it, send fifty cents in stamps to M. L. Clein & Co., Atlanta, Ga. You get your money back if it doesn't help.

Just Sue.

Miss Wilson, of Commerce, Ga., Weds Chas. DuPree, of Atlanta

Commerce, Ga., Aug. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson, of this city, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Harriett Laura Wilson, to Charles Edward DuPree, of Atlanta, the ceremony taking place Wednesday afternoon in Atlanta at the home of Bishop Warren A. Candler, who officiated. Immediately after the service Mr. DuPree and his bride left for a 10-day motor trip through North Carolina. Upon their return they will make their home at 1228 Oxford road, N. E. Druid Hills, Atlanta.

The bride, who is a member of well-known Georgia families, wore for the occasion an attractive gown of white embroidered organza made ankle length. Her hat was a becoming off-the-face model fashioned of white organza and she wore a shoulder bouquet of valley lilies.

Both the bride and bridegroom have a wide circle of friends throughout Georgia who will be interested in the announcement of their marriage.

The bride is an unusually attractive young woman of the titian type of beauty and she possesses a gracious and charming personality which has made her a favorite with a host of friends. She graduated from the Commerce High school with high honors, after which she attended Shorter College and the University of Georgia. She is a member of the Phi Kappa Phi fraternity and the Alpha Mu fraternity.

Like his bride, Mr. DuPree is a representative of distinguished Georgia families, his parents being Mrs. DeLara Main DuPree, of Dalton, Ga., and the late John Smith DuPree, also of Dalton. The groom is prominently identified with Atlanta's real estate circle and is a member of the Atlanta Athletic Club and the East Lake Country Club. He was educated at Epworth University in Oklahoma City, and Emory University. During the World War he served as a lieutenant with the United States army with the 48th infantry.

Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield—I have been engaged to a boy who has had a poor job ever since I have known him. He seldom has any spending money beyond what it takes to buy his clothes and pay his board. I work and make a fair salary and because I live with my parents I always have a little extra cash on hand. As a result of this whenever we go to a show or to any sort of entertainment that costs money I buy both tickets. At first this seemed all right to me but now that he expects me to foot the bills and accept all I do as though it were a matter of course, I have begun to worry about it and to wonder if he has the proper sort of pride. He wants me to marry him in spite of his not being able to support himself and I am stalling. Don't you think I am right?

—PHOEBY S.

Answer: And well you may stall. Nothing is more revealing of a man's character and his trend of thought than his attitude toward money. If he is sane and conservative the dollars passing through his hands will tell the story. If he is prideless he will take money where he can get it, even from a woman. If he is shiftless, though he knows perfectly well that he can't pay for anything, he will bear without money in his jeans, he will make his plans just as though he were weighed down with cash and go through with it at the expense of anyone that happens to be in his vicinity. If he is irresponsible he will charge any and everything and never take on his permanent burdens that come after make the slightest dent in his consciousness. Dealing with money doesn't develop these traits of character. It simply reveals them.

Why would any sensible girl consider marrying a man whose salary is insufficient to support himself? The very fact that he proposes marriage proves that he is utterly lacking both in sense of responsibility and in self-respect. It is bad enough for him to permit his girl-friend to pay for his entertainment but when he proposed that she take on his permanent burdens that come after make the slightest dent in his consciousness, dealing with money doesn't develop these traits of character. It simply reveals them.

Dear Miss Chatfield—Let's have some discussion of the chasing girl-friends. We boys don't have it as easy as you girls. We have to work for our money and we have to make a good thing out of it. We have to make a good thing out of it. We have to make a good thing out of it.

Dear Miss Chatfield—Let's have some discussion of the chasing girl-friends. We boys don't have it as easy as you girls. We have to work for our money and we have to make a good thing out of it. We have to make a good thing out of it. We have to make a good thing out of it.

Answer: The gold diggers are not all on the stage and in story books but isn't it true that these young girls who spend money so freely without taking the boys' finances into account are guilty of thoughtlessness rather than of gold-digging? This is not to excuse them for thoughtlessness is a species of selfishness that can't be excused.

The new crop of young ladies insists upon having their cake and eating it too. In the old days when the boys made all the engagements it was understood that they footed the bills. A girl didn't take her pocket book when she went out on a date. The boy had invited her and he wouldn't have done so if he hadn't had money to finance the evening's entertainment. That was the way it was. It was the way it is now. The girls seem to have taken things in their own hands. They don't wait to be asked, they do the asking and if they reverse the order in one instance they ought at least to modify it in the other instance. If to ask the boys to squire them around, they ought to be independent enough to pay their own way.

You boys might call a mass meeting of your crowd and adopt some resolutions regarding these invasions of your masculine rights, as follows: Be it resolved, first, that we pay for the evening's entertainment only when we have proposed it. Be it resolved, second, that late snacks be confined to a 10-cent sandwich and a five-cent drink. Be it resolved, third, that we discourage the girls in inviting us to take them to dances and parties, leaving the matter of dates in our hands, except when most extraordinary circumstances arise to make their requests necessary.

You will be surprised to find how quickly the girls will take the cue and cease to pester you.

NANCY PAGE

A Raffia Embroidered Bag Is Made in a Few Hours

By FLORENCE LA GANKE.

Nancy tried some raffia embroidery during the hot days. She found that the strands did not cling to her hands nor get soiled as easily as ordinary embroidery cotton or wool. She quite enjoyed the sleek look of the raffia embroidery, too, and finished a sewing bag in a short time.

By sending for the direction leaflet as suggested at the end of this column you will get the dimensions and the pattern for the star that is worked into the plain colored raffia background of this semi-oval sewing bag.

Nancy purchased some wide mesh canvas. She chose that which had 11 meshes to the inch. She used a blunt tapestry needle No. 18, and while she was about it she brought some material for lining the bag. She chose saten in a soft shade.

Nancy used both natural color raffia and deep green. She found the natural color raffia was stiff, so she soaked it in cold water for a number of hours. The green colored was soft but badly twisted. Before she used a strand she pulled it through a thick cloth. This softened the material somewhat and also straightened it out. Nancy was careful in embroidering with it to see that the strands held together and smooth as she drew them through the meshes of the canvas.

She drew her design on the canvas after she had outlined the finished shape of the bag. Then she cut the canvas, being careful to use salvage for the top of the bag. One inch was allowed for seaming.

She worked the raffia in stitches of one inch depth. She was careful to bring the needle through the canvas in a hole directly under the one she had used in bringing the raffia up to the surface. The next row was worked in the row of holes directly next to the ones used in the first row. In this way she avoided having the same hole used in bringing the raffia up to the surface. She wrapped these with one strand of raffia and then taking another strand she buttonholed over the quarter-inch length that was later attached for a handle.

Detailed instructions for making "Raffia Sewing Bag" may be obtained by sending 3 cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page, in care of The Atlanta Constitution. (Copyright, 1934, for The Constitution.)

Culbertson on Contract

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst.

Another Duplicate Play.

In playing the dummy at duplicate.

As I have pointed out before, one must very often risk losing a game in an attempt to squeeze out an extra trick or two. Sometimes the effort to avoid an extra trick is just an act and not a gamble in which the declarer is playing for a top or a bottom. However, there are many times when the declarer must realize that it is practically compulsory for him to gamble for overtricks because he has infinitely more to gain than to lose.

A situation of this type is seen in the hand below.

South, dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

♠ 10 5	♥ A 3 8	♦ A J 8	♣ 9 8 5

The bidding: (Figure after bid refers to numbered explanatory paragraph.)

South	West	North	East
1♠	Pass	3♥	Pass
5NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

1.—North has a very close decision to make at this point—either in rubber bridge or in match-point duplicate. He has no way of telling for an absolute certainty whether or not his hand is a safe game declaration than three no-trumps. Actually, in rubber bridge, possession of the doubleton spade and four trumps should make the hand play one trick better at hearts. In addition, a four-heart contract, assuming everything goes wrong, cannot be as severely penalized as three no-trump. However, in duplicate the decision is closer. North finally decides to pass to his partner's three-no-trump bid in the hope that because of his balanced distribution the hand was very likely to produce an equal number of tricks at no-trump or hearts and accordingly a better mid-point score would be the result.

West opened his fourth-best spade, and South immediately said that his partner had made a bad decision. After East won the first trick with the ace of spades, South realized that assuming there was no bad division in trumps, five or six odd was an absolute laydown at hearts, depending, of course, upon the diamond finesse. South further saw, again assuming the heart suit broke, that nine tricks were absolutely certain at no-trump and that 12 could be won if the diamond finesse was right. South's reasoning went a little further. He realized that if he took his nine top tricks and ran, he would lose on the board (whether or not the diamond finesse worked) to every team that played the hand at four hearts and also to every team which played three no-trump and did not get a spade opening, for with a club opening, which is quite possible from the West hand, South would be in an absolute laydown. As a result of all these observations, South decided that he must gamble for the maximum number of tricks, even though in a playing he might not fulfill his contract. He knew that three no-trump bid and six must be made at least a tie for top score on the board, and he further knew that three or even four no-trump made, with three bid, could not get him more than a few match-points. Having arrived at a very bad decision, South realized that his side, by playing the hand normally, must get a bad score, and that therefore in gambling for the maximum he had practically nothing to lose (as all had already been lost on the bidding) and a great deal to gain.

South did not even make the customary hold-up on East's spade return as he realized that he might as well play for six rather than adopt some futile compromise play. Actually, the diamond finesse worked, and South was able to take 12 tricks and tie for top on the board. I do not say that South deserved this top score, as when a team arrives at a bad contract it should not get a maximum result. However, the South player does deserve credit for correctly sizing up the situation and taking the necessary gamble.

TOMORROW'S HAND.

Delightful Tournament Planned.

All you bridge players who were forced through lack of funds, lack of motor transportation, lack of teams, lack of partners and lack of hitchhiking experience to miss the Asbury trip, lend me your attention and I will tell you of a wonderful substitute for the New Jersey jaunt.

On Saturday, Sunday and Monday of the Labor Day week, Mrs. Ruby Bennett, who runs a most successful bridge club at the Windsor hotel in Jacksonville, is going to hold a team-of-four tournament. The event will be staged at the Windsor hotel. There will be a qualifying round at board-of-match which will reduce the large field, which probably will enter, to eight teams.

These eight teams will then start a knockout tournament. The first round of this will be staged Sunday evening. That will reduce the field to four teams. These four teams will play the semi-finals Monday morning and the two finalists will meet Monday afternoon or evening as suits them. So much for the method of running the tournament. Now as to prizes and tangible benefits. Mrs. Bennett is going to give extremely handsome trophies to the winning team. In addition, and what will prove extremely attractive to the bridge Atlanta bridge players, the Windsor hotel is going to give rooms free to the team which wins the final match point. Fulton Talmadge Club Motorcade To Dalton Will Exceed 100 Autos

More than 100 Fulton county automobiles will be in the Fulton County Talmadge Club's motorcade to Dalton for the governor's fourth speech of his campaign Saturday, Henry C. Davidson Jr., president of the club, declared Wednesday.

Cars in the motorcade are being registered at the club's headquarters in the Henry Grady hotel and Mr. Davidson said Wednesday that many drivers had space for Talmadge supporters who do not own their own cars.

The big motorcade will assemble at the Bell Hotel garage at 10 o'clock for Dalton at noon Saturday. Before departing it will be joined by a number of cars from Griffin, Macon and other points south of here. At Marietta the group will pick up a delegation of Cobb county supporters of the governor and it is hoped that by the time the "cade reaches Dalton it will be composed of 200 cars."

Mr. Davidson said that Talmadge supporters in counties northwest of here were forming smaller motorcades for the Dalton speech. These, he said, are being formed in Bartow, Polk, Paulding, Gordon and other counties.

"We want everyone who is driving to Dalton to register their cars and as many others as they can," Mr. Davidson said. "Our offices will keep the registration lists open until 11 o'clock Saturday morning."

His office is also sponsoring a campaign Wednesday although J. Sid Tiller, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, denied published reports that labor had split over the candidates, asserting that railroad workers who had endorsed Governor Talmadge had adopted pro-Talmadge resolutions under a "misapprehension" and added that they would meet soon to reconsider their action.

DEALERS TO OBSERVE MARKET WEEK HERE

Seven of Atlanta's specialized ready-to-wear shops, with the manufacturers, will celebrate market week in Atlanta beginning next Monday. Atlanta is the leading ready-to-wear market in the southeast.

Merchants of this territory have been invited here to make personal selections of thousands of coats, suits and dresses, to fit juniors, misses and larger women, in hundreds of different styles.

The merchants are invited to take the merchandise home with them. Here they will see the finished products on the racks, whereas in the eastern markets, it was pointed out, it is sold from samples, and is not always like the samples.

Beginning with one concern 10 years ago, Atlanta now has more than 200 specialized ready-to-wear houses dealing in merchandise ranging from the cheapest to the very best. It was also pointed out that the merchant who gets his clothes at these places can sell them at retail before he could get his order to the east.

The houses sponsoring the week are Southern Garment Company, Ray Garment Company, New York Stock House, H. Mendel & Co., Shirley Calk & Dress Company, Levy Brothers and the Charles J. Williamson Company.

Three Men Arrested With Whisky Plant

Three men were at liberty Wednesday under $500 bonds each and an elaborate plan for making fine whiskies out of Georgia corn and raw alcohol had been destroyed as the result of a sudden raid by DeKalb county police.

The three gave their names as B. A. Shaw, Charles Lee and Lonnie Pickle. Shaw, according to police, is now awaiting trial in Fulton county for the alleged slaying of Jockey Elder last fall.

The liquor-making plant was in a house located on the old Camp Gordon site, near Jackson avenue. Chief W. O. Parker listed the confiscated property as 20,000 labels for scotch, gin, etc.; four barrels containing about 120 gallons of whisky, four five-gallon kegs and eight one-gallon jugs of whisky; three automobiles and their loads of new bottles, 42 gallons of grain alcohol, six cases of pints of whisky and 12 cases of quarts of whisky.

The liquor was poured out by Chief Parker and Policemen J. T. Dailey, Ed Foster and R. G. Smith, who helped him in the raid.

BALL PARK CHISELER PAROLED TO FIANCEE

Jack Tanner, 29, climbed over the fence at the ball park Tuesday night and was promptly taken in tow by police.

Wednesday, when he appeared before Judge John L. Cone, a pretty young girl stepped up to the bench and begged for leniency.

"We are going to be married soon, Judge," she explained, "and afterward I will see that he stays out of the ball park."

On her promise to take charge now instead of waiting until after the wedding bells, Judge Cone told Tanner to go and sin no more.

GUNBY NOW RECEIVER FOR DRAINAGE BOARD

Eugene Gunby was appointed receiver by the federal court Wednesday for the assets of the board of drainage commissioners of Cobb county. He will take the place of Thomas C. Harris, who, the court order said, had absconded with funds of the commission.

These funds were unofficially said to amount to about $14,000. The

SEARS FARM EVENT WILL START TODAY

C. H. Bishop, manager of the farmers' market of Sears, Roebuck & Company, announced Wednesday that its annual midsummer farm festival would open today and continue Friday and Saturday, and open again on August 9, 10 and 11.

According to Mr. Bishop, these festivals are anticipated with pleasure by farm people throughout the state, as they afford an opportunity for a pleasant day's visit to Atlanta and at the same time furnishing a chance to study marketing and to sell some of their own products.

Community singing and instrumental music are important parts of the festivities. Gid Tanner and his boys of Gwinnett county will appear daily.

Today has been set aside as "home folks' day." Various groups from different sections of Fulton county will put on programs at various hours during the day.

The program Friday will be sponsored by the vocational teachers and their farm families from Hart county. It was announced that delegations from Hartwell, Airline district, Shoal Creek and Sardis will be present. Each district of that county is planning to put on different programs.

According to Mr. Bishop, much competition has been developed in Fulton county to find the community that can best put on the old-fashioned square dance. Several communities from that county have announced their intention to send teams for this event.

It is also expected that the well-known Buice brothers and others interested in community singing will take a prominent part on the program. Chattahoochee, DeKalb and Gwinnett are among the counties that have signified their intention to put on programs during the following week.

Miss Mapp Weds Mr. Cameron 'At Church' Ceremony in Smyrna

SMYRNA, Ga., Aug. 1.—A brilliant social event centering in the interest of a large circle of friends throughout the state was the marriage of Miss Louise Marie Mapp to Johnnie Judson Cameron, which was solemnized at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the First Baptist church in Smyrna. The ceremony was performed by Dr. I. A. White. Ferns banked the choir loft and chancel, and formed an effective background. The altar was banked with ferns centered with baskets holding pink crapes myrtle flanked by cathedral candelabras holding white tapers. The reserved pews were marked by clusters of pink crapes myrtle tied with white satin ribbon. As the guests assembled, a program of music was rendered by Mrs. George Daniel, of Marietta. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Daniel played "Melody of Love" and Mrs. George Hardage, of Marietta sang the "Rosary" and "Promises Me." As a processional the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin was used and as a recessional Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" was played. During the ceremony "Hearts of Flowers" was rendered.

The ushers were L. A. Tedder and H. L. Marston and the bridesmaids were Misses Carolyn Tolson, Martha McCollum and Mrs. Carey Cameron, of Lithonia. They were gowned in rainbow colors fashioned similarly. Miss Tolson wore pink lace and carried yellow gladioli tied with yellow satin ribbon; Miss McCollum wore green lace and carried pink gladioli tied with pink satin ribbon; and Mrs. Carey wore yellow lace and carried orchid gladioli tied with orchid satin ribbon. The groomsmen included John Collins, of Forsyth; Frank Evans and Carey Cameron, of Lithonia. Miss Elizabeth Mapp, only sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was gowned in blue lace fashioned like the bridesmaids, and carried gladioli tied with blue satin ribbon.

The bride entered the church with her father, William Hanson Mapp, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, A. B. Cameron, younger brother of the bridegroom. The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white lace fashioned along princess lines. Her long tulle veil was held in place by circlets of orange blossoms. She carried an exquisite bouquet of white gladioli showered with swansons.

Following the ceremony at the church, the bridal party and wedding guests were entertained at a reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Hanson Mapp. A profusion of garden flowers formed the effective decorations in the living and dining rooms. The bride's table was overlaid with an Italian lace cloth and centered with a three-tiered and embossed wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom. Miss Elizabeth White, of Lithonia, presided at the bride's register, and Mrs. P. M. Rice Jr., Mrs. N. F. Stewart and Miss Martha Quakes served punch.

Mr. and Mrs. Cameron left for a wedding trip through the Carolinas, after which they will reside on Spring street in Smyrna. The bride's traveling costume was of brown and white sheer crepe with brown accessories. Among the out-of-town guests attending the wedding were Misses

GOOGIRL
By PEGGY GADDIS.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE. While Calissa Logan, pretty 19-year-old southern cotton mill worker, is dancing in a pavilion near Staley Mills, she attracts the attention of Kent Stanley, 25, and handsome, whose aristocratic mother owns the mills. Kent cuts in and, the dance ended, suggests a drive in his roadster. He stops at the roadside but when she refuses his kiss he drives her to her home, the shabby cottage of her uncle and aunt, the Johnsons. As they arrive Calissa confides that she repulsed him because she suddenly realized how much he wanted to kiss her. She kisses him and he gives her his fraternal ring, Jim Wright, Kent and herself and telling of the romance of the mill owner's son and the "cotton doll," as the girl workers are called. When she returns to work she is summoned to the office of Mr. Powers, the general manager, where Mr. Norman, a lawyer representing Mrs. Stanley, who goes in person to Calissa's home, adding, "We love each other and some day we are to be married—whether you like it or not!" Mrs. Stanley says Kent is engaged to a girl of his own class. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

But when he made a little involuntary movement as though he would do just that, she became burningly conscious of the people about her, several of them glancing with interest at her and Kent, and she shrank from him, putting up a swiftly protesting hand, eyes brimming with laughter. "Oh, Kent—don't!"

"Well, I warned you!" said Kent. "I suppose I'll have to go—but I don't want to a bit! Will you miss me, Calissa?"

"Of course!" said Calissa, so desolately that the lightness vanished from

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

FROM LOG TO OCEAN LINER. IV—When Greeks Braved the Waves.

Eyes are painted on the front of many Chinese boats or "junks," and when a Chinaman was asked the reason, he replied, "No have eyes, no can see."

The Greeks liked the idea of having different levels of rowers at different levels. Holes were cut in the sides of ships for the oars to pass through. Men sat on benches inside, and—in the case of Greece, at least—rowed to the tune of piping music.

The lowestmost oars appear to have been about seven feet long, those next above 10 feet, the third row 13 feet, the fourth 16 feet and the fifth 19 feet.

An oar 19 feet long would not have been easy to handle if it had not been for "weighting." Lead or iron was placed at the upper end of each extra-long oar, near the handle, and this gave balance to it.

It is figured that about 300 men were needed to row Greek ships with five banks of oars. In addition there were probably two dozen sailors to handle the sails. On windy days the sails might give full speed; but in calm weather the vessel could have made little progress without the work of the oarsmen.

Some Greek ships were more than 150 feet long and could carry from 300 to 500 tons of cargo. As many as 30 horses were taken across the sea in a single vessel with three banks of oars.

Sailors of Athens placed statues of Athena on board their vessels. They hoped that the goddess would guard them from danger, perhaps by telling Poseidon, god of the sea, to spare them from storms.

Greece is a land of many bays and harbors, and in ancient times there were thousands of Greeks who learned the art of sailing. Part of their learning came from Phoenicia, part from Egypt. Like the Phoenicians, they made long voyages, and Greek sailors reached the British coast.

Ancient folk, as we have seen, found the way for more men to row a boat the city and the surrounding hills that faded into blue distance.

A man of about 45, heavy, important looking, looked up from behind the desk as Myrtis and Calissa came in. He would have been handsome, had he not been quite so overweight, but as it was there was something attractive about him that was not entirely the result of barbering and tailoring.

"Oh, hello, Myrtis—how's my girl?" he greeted Myrtis, and stopped as he saw Calissa. "Oh—I thought you were alone," he said, his tone altered.

Myrtis grinned and waved a hand toward Calissa.

"Observe Exhibit A and then tell me how she's a smart little girl!" he said. "Mr. Gordon, this is Miss Logan, of whom you have no doubt heard through our mutual friend, Andrew Norman—the dumb cluck!"

Gordon said, sternly, under his breath, "Watch yourself, Myrtis!"

He spoke gently to Calissa, his tone that of an employer speaking to a new employee. "Oh, yes, Miss Logan—Mr. Norman wrote me about you. I hope you are going to be happy here with us. And now, if you will just wait in the outer office, there are a few—er—details that I must discuss with Miss Lawrence!"

Calissa nodded, murmured something and turned to the door. As she closed it behind her, she glanced back—and saw Myrtis getting up, moving toward Gordon, and Gordon rising to meet her. Another moment and Calissa felt sure she would see the other's arms, and she closed the door hastily, a little guiltily.

The pale, anemic girl behind the information desk looked up, and Calissa saw that her eyes, behind the thick-lensed, horn-rimmed glasses, were cold and hard. Calissa was startled. Why should this strange girl look at her with such hatred and contempt? She had never set eyes on the girl before in her life—why should the girl hate her?

Calissa sat down in one of the chairs ranged against the walls, and waited. Several other people were waiting, too, and now and then a man would come out of one of the several doors opening into the office, and approach one of these waiting people; and then the man and the one who had waited would disappear into one of the other offices, and the other waiters would settle down again. Now and then the outer door would open, and a man or woman would stop at the information desk and ask for one of the several names listed on the door, and the pale, anemic girl would take up the telephone, speak a few words and then disappear into one of the other offices, or "Mr. So-and-so is busy and wants you to wait, please—over there. Just have a seat and he'll be out soon."

Calissa, waiting and looking on with eager eyes, wondered if this was the girl whose job she was to have. If so, what was to become of this girl?

The big central office was a bee-hive of subdued activity. There were half a dozen typewriters clattering merrily, benches, the flying fingers of girls who didn't even look up when the various doors opened or shut. There were two men who worked at tall desks at the back of the room, and there was a constant passing to and fro of men from various offices, clients going and coming—Calissa thrilled at the thought of being a part of all this activity and business.

Perhaps an hour passed before Myrtis came out into the main office, and with a little dreamy smile on her lips, passed without a second glance the information desk where the pale, anemic girl glared at her with hatred in her eyes.

"Let's shake a leg, kid!" she ordered, carelessly, to Calissa, and led her away to the elevator.

Myrtis was humming under her breath, her full red mouth pursed in a little satisfied smile. It was quite a joy to be in Mr. Gordon's office, had been raised to her satisfaction. She positively purred, thought Calissa, as they got into the elevator and descended to the street.

"Is that the office where I am to work?" asked Calissa, breaking the silence between them.

"What—oh, sure!" said Myrtis, carelessly.

"At the information desk?"
